PREFACE.

THE favour, with which the UNIVERSAL MAGAZINE has been hitherto received, demands the moſt grateful acknowledgments from its Proprietors; and, while they are encouraged to expect the future indulgence of the Public, they are ſtimulated to exert their utmoſt efforts for their entertainment.

In their collections, they have been attentive to exhibit thoſe pieces, which have the recommendation of real merit; to give variety to their publication, and to gratify readers of every claſs, have, at the ſame time, been the chief objects of their care. From diſquiſitions into Philoſophy and Science, they have paſſed into the fields of Fancy, and have ſtudiouſly endeavoured to blend inſtruction and amuſement. To cultivate the underſtanding, to exerciſe the imagination, and to unfold the emotions of the heart, are the purpoſes to which they conſecrate their toils.

To their Correſpondents they return their beſt thanks for the many ingenious and uſeful papers, with which they have enabled them to enrich their work. The ſenſe they entertain of their obligations to them will always induce them moſt readily to comply with their requeſts, when they are conſiſtent with the plan they have adopted, and the views, with which they conduct themſelves.

With regard to their Frontiſpiece for the preſent Volume, it is ſufficient for them to remark, that it is expreſſive of the act of the Deity extracting the World out of the Chaos.
